Decision On Postoffice Site May Be Made Within 30 Days

After inspecting twenty of the possible locations for the new post-office in Carmel, George Rolfe, site agent for the treasury department left last night loaded down with facts and figures on which he will base his recommendations.

Of the twenty sites, Rolfe will make recommendations for only three—the preferred location, the second best and the third next. Within 30 to 40 days after he submits his report to the treasury department, he said, a definite decision on the site selected will be announced.

Rolfe arrived in Carmel early Wednesday morning and went on a tour of inspection with Postmaster William Overstreet, visiting each of the twenty plots of land that had been submitted for consideration.

In the afternoon, a meeting of property owners involved and others interested in the matter was held in the city council chambers. Rolfe briefly explained to those present the procedure of the government in selecting a site.

During the meeting, Rolfe revealed that the original appropriation of $80,000 had been reduced to $72,000. This, he declared, made it imperative for bidders to trim down on their original figures.

According to Rolfe, the government seldom ever pays more than ten per cent of the appropriation for a suitable location, the rest of the money going into the building. He definitely indicated, however, that in the case of Carmel, where property values are considerably higher than in communities of the same size, an exception might be made.

Ray DeYoe, who was one of several who spoke at the meeting, managed to get Rolfe to admit that the government in the case of Carmel, might go up to as high as fifteen per cent of the appropriation in paying for a lot. Others who asked various questions included John B. Jordan, Graft Willis and Bernard Rowntree.

All of the rest of Wednesday and yesterday was spent by Rolfe in conferring with property owners and in gathering up data and figures which he will use

E. H. Ewig Will Run for Office Of Sunset School Trustee

A movement toward removing the danger of a bitter partisan conflict from the March election of a trustee for the Sunset School district was started this week when a group of business men and women secured the consent of E. H. Ewig, the grocer, to be a candidate for the position. Ewig has not been identified with either faction in the campaigns of the past, and is a business man of high standing, with two children in the school.

On the petition urging his election are names of people from both sides of the contest, and it is likely that Ewig will have no opposition for the place. He stands for increased economies in the conduct of the school, and promises to devote his time and abilities in business to keeping up a high standard of excellence at the least possible cost to the taxpayers.

The petition, with its signers, is as follows:

To the Electors of the Sunset School District:

Believing that the best interests of the Sunset School demands a selection of a trustee at the March election without the turmoil and ill feeling of a bitter conflict, we residents and voters of the district have requested E. H. Ewig to become a candidate for such office, and have received his acceptance of the nomination.

Mr. Ewig is a business man and property owner of the district, and has children in the school. As a taxpayer he will carefully guard in the interest of economy; as a business man he will give the affairs of the office the time and care they warrant, and will represent the entire people of the district, regardless of factions; as a parent he will safeguard the efficiency of the school.

selyn, Augustine Josselyn, P. C. Prince, R. C. DeYoe, Robert G. Leidig, Janet Prentiss, Winsor Josselyn, Conrad C. Imelman, Arthur T. Shand, L. H. Levinson, Earl D. Graft, John H. Neikirk, Daisy Bostick, R. E. Bonham, Carl S. Rohr, M. J. Murphy.

Local Aliens Face Arrest as Federal Men Launch Probe

Possible arrest and deportation faced this week a number of aliens who are said to have gained illegal admittance into this country and are now residing in and around Carmel.

A secret investigation, the Pine Cone learned, has been conducted here for some time by members of the federal immigration department and several residents have been questioned and grilled.

The investigation, it is understood, is being conducted by P. J. Farrelly and Leo Smith, both federal immigration inspectors. Among the aliens quizzed was one Chinese cook in Carmel and two Japanese in the Pebble Beach area.

Several Russians, one Englishman and a Hindu, who are living in and around Carmel have also been questioned. So far, no arrests have been made, pending a further investigation of the cases involved.

Similar investigations are being conducted secretly throughout the country. In Salinas alone, three Chinese were taken to San Francisco for questioning.

According to the immigration officers, one resident in particular whose name they withheld, was deported six months ago, and again entered this country through the Canadian border.

Two days before the immigration officers arrived, he eluded them, leaving most of his belongings behind.

Arm of Venus May Reach High Court As Damage Suit Looms

Venus, uncloaked and unashamed, is again about to become the center of another court trial.

Not only has the famous statue led to trouble for eight Carmel youths, but now their parents may have to dig deep in their pockets to pay damages.

A suit for $500 damages, it was learned this week, was being prepared by attorneys for Fred Wermuth and is scheduled to be filed shortly in the superior court at Salinas. Wermuth is seeking the damages for alleged breakage of the famous Venus which for several years has garnished his front yard on San Carlos street.

The statue, said to be made of fine Italian marble, was taken for a "ride" on Friday night January 13, by a group of Carmel youths, all sons of prominent families. On the following morning, Carmelites found the nude Venus directing traffic at the intersection of Ocean avenue and San Antonio street.

According to Wermuth, the statue suffered a broken arm in the transportation which cannot be replaced. In his damage suit, Wermuth will ask for $500—the storage bill which the owner was unable to pay and which resulted in his coming into possession of it.

Four of the youths involved in "kidnapping" the statue were certified to the juvenile court when they appeared for hearing Saturday before Police Judge George L. Wood. Four additional youths are also scheduled to be certified to the juvenile court.

Gardens Form Theme For Talks Given At Woman's Club Meeting

Gardens at home and abroad (last but quite important) fighting pests. Eugene Watson explained the purpose and use of the "Carmel Dollar." The Woman's club went on record as endorsing the plan and pledged their support.

The program was sponsored by the garden section of the club and in charge of Miss Agnes Ford who introduced the speakers.

Preceding the Garden program announcements were made and routine business was conducted by Mrs. Karl Rendtorff, president of the club.

Tea and cakes were served and a social hour enjoyed by over fifty members and guests present at the meeting. Mrs. J. L. Cockburn and Mrs. Sumter Earle poured. Mrs. Calvert was hostess for the day.

Repairs are completed on Elizabeth Sampson's car after a head-on collision. The accident occurred six miles on the Watsonville Santa Cruz highway. Both cars were going at a slow rate and the occupants sustained minor cuts and bruises. The driver of the other car was J. Muller of Santa Cruz.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Terry of Carmel spent the weekend in San Francisco.

Zoning For Carmel Environs To Come Up For Action On Feb. 20

The fight to zone territory surrounding Carmel against the establishment of a commercialized area will come to a climax on Monday afternoon February 20—the date set by the board of supervisors for a formal hearing on the matter.

Several hundred Carmel residents, it was learned this week, are planning to be present at the hearing and will urge adoption of the zoning plan which won the recommendation of the Monterey county planning commission last week.

Adoption of the zoning plan by the board of supervisors is necessary before it can be legally enforced. Once the plan is adopted by the supervisors, it becomes effective within 30 days.

Indications at the present time are that the supervisors will accept the plan as recommended by the commission and will make no changes. Andrew Jacobsen, newly elected supervisor from this district, has assured the Pine Cone, that he will not only vote for its adoption but will recommend the other supervisors to support it. George Dudley, former chairman of the board, has also come out in favor of the plan.

Adolph Hanke, one of the leaders in the fight to ban the commercialized area that would have permitted an auto camp and hot dog stands at the entrance of the village, is urging local residents to be present at the hearing.

"It is important," Hanke said today, "that we show the supervisors that Carmel is unanimously in favor of zoning the surrounding area. As many residents as possible who could be present at the hearing would aid the cause."

Mayor John Catlin, members of the city council and others who have fought for the zoning plan are also scheduled to take in the hearing.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hartley have returned from an interesting trip through the East.

Assessment on Autos Scheduled To Start

Assessment on automobiles owned by Carmel residents is scheduled to start shortly, according to County Assessor Walter Taveretti who is now preparing the proper blanks which will be mailed out throughout Monterey county.

As in previous years, John Kenneth Turner, is expected to continue to act in the capacity of deputy county assessor for this district.

Carmel Youth Injured In Highway Accident

Rudy G. Figoli, 21, Carmel youth, was this week recovering from cuts and bruises suffered in an automobile accident last week on the Salinas-Castroville highway.

Figoli was riding in an automobile driven by Father Michael Dunleavy of San Carlos Catholic church when the machine failed to make the turn and crashed off the road and overturned. John "Red" Crivello, 22, Monterey athlete who was also in the car was seriously injured and may lose the sight of his right eye.

State Traffic Officer Leo Ramsey of Carmel investigated the crash.

Fire Hydrant Parley To Be Held by Committee

Members of the Carmel committee appointed to investigate the possibility of the village purchasing its own fire hydrants will meet next week with officials of Monterey and Pacific Grove.

Carmel which is taking the initiative in the movement for public ownership of the hydrants is expected to bring the matter before the railroad commission jointly with Pacific Grove and Monterey. Members of the local committee, which includes Councilmen Herbert Heron, John Jordan and Robert Norton, will discuss the matter with City Manager R. M. Dorton of Monterey and Erwin Dames of Pacific Grove.

This scheduled discussion will determine proper procedure before the railroad commission.

At the present time, Carmel is paying enough money for rental every two years, to purchase all of the 84 hydrants. The peninsula cities, it is understood, pay more for the use of the hydrants than probably any other community in the state.

Benefit Party To Be Given by Woman's Club

An elaborate party and entertainment featuring Carmel talent is now being arranged by members of the Carmel Woman's club and will be given under their auspices on March 17. All proceeds of the affair will be turned over to the Carmel Employment Commission. Mrs. Karl Rendtorff, president of the Woman's club heads the committee making the arrangements.

Millions of dollars have been changed into gold and buried in safe deposit vaults and elsewhere as though currency or gold could have any value toward prosperity when placed in such places. Hoarding is the greatest curse and menace to our general prosperity.

Absolute extravagance may mean waste and folly, but at least the spender, however extravagant, is better than the hoarder, however cunningly he may excuse his short-sighted selfishness.

Our national prosperity has been based always on our generous national spending. He who hoards when he might reasonably spend injures himself and defeats his own selfish purposes. If you have been tight-fisted, clutching your money, fearful and hesitating, you are checking the resumption of good business. We know that prosperity depends upon spending just as health depends upon the circulation of the blood. But we wait, millions of us, hesitating, expecting somebody else to make the start.

Money stagnates and the return of full prosperity is delayed when thousands that need to buy and intend to buy, say uncertainly, "I shall wait and see." Hundreds of thousands that plan investments, new buildings, new developments, are also "waiting to see."

And while they wait prosperity waits.

If you need anything and can buy it, why not buy it NOW and help business? Saving, wisely done, is desirable when times are good and spending is not needed, but spending is more desirable when business and industry are stagnant. There is a thousand times more usefulness and happiness for yourself and for others in a new automobile, new clothing, etc., than in a few hundred idle dollars in the bank.

The purpose of this editorial is not to urge reckless or foolish spending. Every sensible American knows perfectly well what he can do reasonably, and what he ought to do. It is his duty, however, to contribute, just now especially, all that he can to the stream of prosperity and national recovery.

CIRCULATE YOUR DOLLARS IN THE CIRCLE OF ENCHANTMENT

"Carmel Dollars" To Be Placed In Circulation Next Tuesday

The first issue of "Carmel Dollars" will be placed in circulation next Tuesday when unemployed crews working on municipal projects will be paid partly by means of "Carmel Dollars."

Printing of the Dollars is now under way and it is expected that they will be ready for distribution on Tuesday. The "Carmel Dollars" will be used by the workers receiving them, for purchasing food products or other articles they need.

Carmel merchants will take the Dollars in exchange for their merchandise and they in turn will spend them or pass them on to customers. Each time a transaction takes place, a three-cent stamp, sold for that purpose, is placed on the back of the Dollar. When the "Carmel Dollar" has gone through 36 different exchanges, it will be redeemed for one dollar in cash on presentation at either of the Carmel banks.

Through the circulation of the "Carmel Dollar," the Carmel Business Association, sponsors of the plan, not only anticipate aiding unemployed men, but also stimulating local business. Around seventy-five dollars will be issued the first week and similar sums from week to week, the amount of each subsequent week's issue depending upon local reception of the Dollars, until one thousand dollars will have been issued.

According to Howell Byrnes, chairman of the committee in charge of the plan, residents and merchants are enthusiastically in support of the plan. Virtually every local organization, including the Carmel city council, has passed

Toss Up Looms On Two Sites For Postoffice

Possible location of the Carmel postoffice has dwindled down to only two sites. The PINE CONE definitely learned this morning.

It will be a toss up on whether the White Cedars property at Dolores and Ninth streets or the Goold land at the corner of Junipero and Ocean will be selected as the site for the postoffice. All the 18 other sites, according to the information received by The PINE CONE, have been disqualified by George Rolfe, federal site agent.

resolutions endorsing the "Carmel Dollar" plan.

The services of two noted Carmel artists have been contributed in making the designs for the "Carmel Dollars." Jo Mora has created the design for the certificate and Catherine Seideneck has done the same for the stamp that is used in spending the "Dollar."

Eugene Watson, president of the Business association, is urging all the residents to accept the "Carmel Dollars" in change and to speed their circulation as much as possible. Watson stressed that only by rapid circulation and redemption would it be made possible for the committee to issue the dollars more rapidly. The more that are issued, the more relief can be given the unemployed.

Sheridan Case Will Be Aired in Court Again

A motion for a new trial in the now famous Sheridan "music" case is scheduled to be considered in the Monterey county superior court on February 17.

Attorneys for Frank and Edna Sheridan of Carmel are to demand a new trial, following a verdict returned sometime ago in favor of Jerry Vogel. The case is the outgrowth of the "Marcheta" song from which a fortune was made.

T. A. Dorney Appointed Deputy County Coroner

T. A. Dorney, head of the Dorney funeral parlors in Monterey, was this week appointed deputy county coroner, according to announcement made by J. A. Cornett, county coroner.

Dorney, it is understood, will act as deputy coroner for Carmel and the rest of the Monterey peninsula. He is well known in this section and has been located in Monterey for many years.

Carol Weston-Dora Blaney Recital

By Hal Garrott

It required ingenious squeezing to pack all the music lovers into the Denny-Watrous Gallery who came to hear the Carol Weston-Dora Blaney violin-piano recital Saturday night. The artists were vigorously applauded, and deservedly. The first part of the Brahms D Minor Sonata served to break the ice and warm up the players. The final movement was given a stirring performance. Carol Weston employs a husky, slightly hushed tone highly musical. But when the occasion demands she is capable of the fire and dash employed so successfully in her orchestral conducting.

Virtuosity is a jealous master. To achieve it in supreme degree the artist must devote a lifetime to that alone. Miss Weston is an inspired and gifted musician, teacher, and orchestral conductor. It would be out of place to expect a huge, luscious tone, high finish and the breath taking technique of the professional concert violinist. Her performance was a purely musical event, all the more so because free from thrills and exhibitionism.

Dora Blaney's touch possesses velvety mellowness, never approaching the brilliant hardness of the piano gymnast. Exquisitely blended with the violin, her playing throughout was a feature of the recital. Carol Weston's eloquent reading of the melodic Cesar Franck Sonata in A Major set off by the delightfully played lacy piano part, won enthusiastic applause and several recalls. Carmel will look forward to hearing these artists again. They should be especially effective in a program including the more worth while moderns.

Santa Cruz Exhibit Has Work by Local Artists

With Carmel and the Monterey peninsula better represented than probably any other section in the state, the Santa Cruz annual art exhibition opened this week in the bay view room at the beach.

One of the three members of the jury who selected the 237 paintings was Chapel Judson, well known Pebble Beach artist.

Among the Carmel and peninsula artists who are showing work at the exhibition are:

Armin Hansen, Monterey, "Racing Home."

C. Chapel Judson, Pebble Beach, "San Andreas."

Edda Maxwell Heath, Carmel, "Her First Ball."

Alice B. Comins, Carmel, "Sovranes."

Edith Maguire, Monterey, "Close View on Mount Lassen," "Old Door San Juan Mission" and "Lake Walker."

Burton S. Boundey, Monterey, "Golden Hills," "In the Coral de Tierra" and "Monterey Coast."

Karle Girard Felton, Carmel, "Still Life."

James Fitzgerald, Monterey, "January," California; "October," New Mexico (Taos); "Great Oaks."

Edith Heron, Monterey, "Monterey Oaks" and "Reflections."

Wilna Hervey, Carmel, portrait sketch.

Ferdinand Burgdorff, Pebble Beach, "Two Cottonwoods."

Catherine Seideneck, Carmel, "Loading Cargo" and "Italian Villa."

William P. Silva, Carmel, "Old Adobe," "Twilight, Carmel Bay," and "Springtime in South Carolina."

The $100 prize offered by the Santa Cruz Woman's club went to Burton S. Boundey of Monterey for his painting, "Golden Hills." The painting becomes the property of the club and will hang in the new clubhouse now being constructed in Santa Cruz.

Presidio Players To Present Famous Play

Rehearsals have begun for a benefit performance of "Dulcy" to be given at the Monterey Officers' Club on the evening of Washington's Birthday, February 22.

The Presidio received constant calls for charitable aid and is endeavoring to replanish its relief fund by a practically painless method. To get and to give a maximum of fun from their fund-raising the Presidio Players decided to produce "Dulcy," the sensational success by George Kaufman and Marc Connelly, celebrated authors of many New York hits. There is fun a-plenty in putting on such a clever, sophisticated comedy and unquestionably a good time for the audience. Even those who saw Lynn Fontanne in the New York production will want to laugh through an evening of Dulcy's hilarious tragedies again.

Sylvia Sinding and Winifred Howe

By Hal Garrott

A music critic in Carmel leads a hectic life. Take a sample day. In the morning a teacher calls at the house to present a promising pupil. The afternoon brings forth a musicale at the Highlands. That night the Denny-Watrous Gallery offers an important concert. The next day being Sunday there are only three affairs to go to. As we are to have dinner guests I compromise by attending two scheduled for the afternoon. The time of one has been altered to admit of my going to both.

The first affair is a recital by four pupils of Madam Sylvia Sinding. I am impressed by the progress of Ann Chinn, daughter of the Carmel clergyman. She sings three classical numbers with clear, full-throated soprano. Her tones are true, round, sweet and unforced. Mother sits at the piano coaching daughter sotto voce in stage deportment. The young artist reveals musical feeling and intelligence.

Next Edith Elashio of Monterey surprises us with a captivating light opera soprano, just the vehicle for Gilbert and Sullivan. There is pleasing personal quality, too, and developed within less than a year. Wallace Doolittle, a Carmel boy, reveals promise with a sonorous baritone of ample volume. Billy McConnell shows a voice just emerging that hints of future achievement. All in all a showing any teacher might be proud of. No need of going to San Francisco for lessons—rather the other way round.

The second affair was a finished performance of the Roy Harris piano sonata by Winifred Howe, daughter of Katherine MacFarland Howe. Winifred has been engaged to play a recital here of all American music. Her work was reviewed in the Pine Cone some months ago. Roy Harris, a frequent visitor in Carmel, is considered by many to be America's most gifted modern. Miss Howe has been selected to perform his works at concerts in Los Angeles.

Under the expert hands of Winifred the sonata conveys the refreshing spirit of the West. There is a lively movement hinting of the dash of bronco mounted cowboys bounding after the milking herd in bright sunny spaces. In spirit it suggests the Cossack pizzicato movement in the Tchaikowsky symphony, but is infinitely more modern. Big things may be expected of Roy Harris—and of Winifred Howe, too.

Mershons to Talk on Life in Bali

The Mershons, named Tuon and Nonya by the native Balinese, speak with authority and from a fund of authentic and fascinating interesting material on the life of the island of Bali, and their films and native music leave the audience in no doubt as to why so many want "to go to Bali."

They know the why of the unwritten law that one must never say "thank you" for a gift; they know why technocracy is superfluous in those communal villages and that in order to get a house built you do not go out and hire laborers but you give a three day festival and mention casually that you have need of a house.

In response to repeated requests, the Mershons will give a conversational lecture on Bali in the Denny-Watrous Gallery tomorrow evening, February 11, showing films, textiles, native instruments, and playing records of the native music. The film of the priest's hands and of the dancer Mario will be repeated from the former lecture, by popular demand.

Mrs. Mershon, who is Katherine Edson the dancer, is at work on a book on Bali, which she is just completing after her ten months stay on the island. The Mershons again leave for Bali on February 20, intending to stay for a period of two years.

Mr. A. Arnot, former resident of Carmel, and now residing in Marysville was in Carmel for several days.

Tony Luhan, the picturesque and colorful Taos Indian chieftain here. He and Mrs. Luhan have been in Carmel again this week, the Stewart house on the Point.

Strange Crime Orgy Leads To Prison After Attack on Woman

Long prison terms this week awaited two Monterey men, following their brutal attack on Mrs. Marion Collier, Carmel resident, who Friday night was beaten into unconsciousness in one of the strangest orgies of crime that has come to the attention of authorities.

The two, Hardie Richards, 33 and Ernest Shepherd, 23, are being held in the county jail at Salinas pending a plea of guilty which they are scheduled to enter when their hearing is held in the superior court.

Mrs. Collier was walking up Carmel hill on her way home when two men overtook her and invited her to ride. At first Mrs. Collier refused, but both Richards and Shepherd were so insistent, she finally accepted.

Instead of taking her home, however, the car proceeded down the Carmel valley highway. Mrs. Collier frantically asked them to stop the car. When she tried to leap, Richards who was riding in the back seat, struggled with her and then proceeded to strike blows.

Two miles down the valley road, both men struck her until she dropped to the ground unconscious. She was left there dazed and bleeding and more than half an hour passed before she had enough strength to get up and walk to the nearest telephone where she communicated with police.

Mrs. Collier was immediately taken to the El Adobe hospital in Monterey where ten stitches on her head had to be taken in addition to treatment for cuts and bruises.

As far as Richards and Shepherd were concerned, the orgy had not come to an end. By Lover's Point, in Oak Grove they drove an automobile operated by Fred Weber of Monterey off the road. Weber was accompanied by Miss Gertrude Childress also of Monterey.

Using similar tactics as before, the two men once more proceeded to beat Miss Childress and Weber. Then frightened, they leaped into their car and disappeared. A few hours later both Richards and Shepherd were picked up by police.

After being grilled by Chief of Police Fred Moore and Argyll Campbell, deputy district attorney, the two confessed to the assault. They face one to 50 years in prison.

Mrs. Collier is employed as a servant in a local home. She has been a resident in the village for sometime.

Step Ladder May Be Used to Cast Votes

If an election was called at this time, Carmel voters would have to use stepladders to mark the ballots which would be more than eight feet long to contain all the state issues now up for consideration.

There are 136 proposed constitutional amendments at the present time before the state legislature. If all these were passed, a summary of each would appear on the ballot for the people's approval. It is recalled here that in 1914, the ballots were three feet long and only contained forty-eight propositions.

Dime Store Will Not Establish in Carmel

Contrary to rumors that have been circulating in Carmel for several weeks, a five-and-ten cent store will not establish quarters in the village.

According to a letter received by Charles F. deLannoy, Carmel contractor, from the officials of the dime store, they have never planned and are not contemplating

"either at this time or in the future to open a branch in Carmel."

Central Bureau For Relief To Be Formed

Establishment of a central bureau for the co-ordination of all social welfare and relief activities on the Monterey peninsula loomed definitely this week following a meeting held in Monterey by the Committee of Fifteen.

Through the central bureau, relief work can be carried out without duplication and in a more adequate manner. During the meeting, H. D. Coon told of the working of the Unemployed Relief council and Ney Otis, county welfare officer, reported on what aid he was giving to those in need on the peninsula.

Mrs. Sidney Fish of Carmel valley presided at the meeting as chairman of the committee of fifteen. Mrs. Howard Hatton and Harry Laquette represented Carmel at the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wein-gartner of Boulder Creek spent the weekend in Carmel as the house-guests of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Abernethy of San Antonio and Eighth streets.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas White of Carmelo street were called to San Francisco to attend the funeral of a friend.

Penha Soloist Second Music Society Concert

The second event of the Carmel Music Society winter series will be no less brilliant than the opening, when a hundred or more were turned from the door of an overfilled house. Michel Penha, celebrated cellist, will give a program of music for the cello on Saturday evening, February 25, in Sunset School Auditorium.

Penha's name is known throughout Europe, South America, the United States and Canada, where his superb art as a cellist has placed him among the five or six in the world who are known as great artists of the cello.

Penha, with Ralph Linsley at the piano, is presenting a program of very beautiful music. The first group offers works of three Italian masters of the Pre-Bach period.

First comes a Toccata by Frescobaldi, (1583-1644). The work was originally written for organ, and arranged for cello by Cassado. It opens with a few measures of slow introduction, followed by a development in rhapsodic style most happily suited to the cello. The composition is in the key of D major, excellently expressing the brilliant, radiant mood of the piece. The pervading spirit of this opening number is one of virility and accomplishing energy coming to consummation in a satisfying D major tonic note.

Penha's unflinching artistry is shown in his placing Tartini's "Grave" in D minor as the second number on the program, following the permeating brightness of the Frescobaldi. Penha says that to him this "Grave" of Tartini is one of the saddest of pieces, profoundly moving in its unvarying D minor key. The piano plays only one chord to each beat, giving an effect as of a Greek choir rhythmically marking the utterance of the solo. An insistent fatality, a pure simplicity of statement throughout its short life, closes one of the most beautiful bits of writing for the cello.

Tartini (1692-1770), one of the outstanding figures in the history of music, wrote this "Grave" as the slow movement of a concerto originally written for the viola da gamba, the father of the cello. In its early form it had harpsichord accompaniment, of course. Later it was orchestrated for string quintet with two horns. Penha promises that he may later play it in its original form with the accompaniment of the Monterey Peninsula Orchestra.

Last in the first group of this program of music for the cello on February 25 is a sonata by Sammartini (1700-1775), one of 2800 compositions by the great Italian who has been called the "father of Haydn's style."

This sonata was also originally for viola da gamba, and was arranged for cello by Penha's own teacher, Josef Salmon, the famous French Cellist.

The work is in three short movements in the key of G major, bubbling with joyfulness and good spirits. The slow movement is particularly melodious, the last movement, marked Vivace, brilliant and overflowing with gladness.

The Peninsula has waited a long time to hear Michel Penha as a solo artist. This second event of the Carmel Music Society Series promises to be one of the outstanding recitals in its five-year history.

Realty Partnership Makes Active New Concern

Daisy Bostick, one of the best known realty brokers in Carmel, has recently formed a partnership with Kenneth Wood, for a number of years prominently active in the real estate business here. The new firm is Bostick and Wood, and its office is at the corner of Ocean avenue and Dolores street.

In this same office, several years ago, when Daisy Bostick was renting department manager of another concern, Kenneth Wood was the office manager. The new combination brings together again two of the most active and reliable realtors on the peninsula.

Mrs. Bostick, "Ask Daisy Bostick", is a pioneer of Carmel, with a fine knowledge of property values, and a long experience in the handling of rentals. Wood will act as agent for several insurance companies, with facilities for every kind of coverage. The two should make a successful brokerage concern.

Gloria Stuart To Lead March at Movie Ball

Gloria Stuart, Carmel girl who made good in Hollywood and has been starred in a number of important moving pictures, will lead the grand march at a Movie ball to be given at Salinas tomorrow night.

Gloria and a number of other film celebrities are coming to Salinas to take part in the affair which will be given in the new armory auditorium under the auspices of the moving picture operators' association. Otto Habekoss of Monterey is in charge of the affair.

Police Warn Against Accepting Car Rides

Women residents, youngsters and others were being warned this week by Chief of Police August Englund against the danger of accepting automobile rides from total strangers.

Chief Englund pointed out to the recent attack on Mrs. Marion Collier as an example of what may result from automobile rides with strangers. Contrary to stories that came out of Monterey, Mrs. Collier was not "picked" up in Carmel nor was she beaten here. She was walking on the Carmel Hill near the toll gate when she encountered the two men who brutally beat her.

Elizabeth McClung White, is back at her desk after having been ill for a number of weeks.

Valuable Lincoln Document In Possession of Local Resident

A three-page legal document with which Lincoln was first connected in his early days of legal practice. This document, together with many other valuable relics belonging to Lincoln came into the possession of Judge Wheeler who left them to his son. Some of the most valuable documents were stolen from the younger Wheeler's office in New York 15 years ago and have never been recovered.

The document which was written in connection with a suit instituted by Lincoln on behalf of a client is valued at many thousands of dollars and is kept in the safe-deposit vault in the Carmel bank.

It came down to Wheeler from his father, Judge Samuel P. Wheeler, who many years later became a member of the original law firm

The legal document still in Wheeler's possession was apparently a copy of a suit filed in the circuit court of the United States in the southern district of Illinois. It was dated at Springfield in January 1858. Lincoln as attorney for the Bank of Commerce seeks payment of $7000 from The Emporium Real Estate and Manufacturing company on a promissory note alleged due.

Kay Johnson to Appear in New S. F. Performance

Kay Johnson, well known in Carmel as a fine actress, will star in "When Ladies Meet," a new production which opens this coming Monday at the Geary Theatre in San Francisco.

Miss Johnson will portray the role of a novelist in the production and Catherine Doucet has been brought from the east to play the leading comedienne. "When Ladies Meet" is now a current Broadway hit, and according to critics who have acclaimed it, the play is highly amusing and in spots racy and frank.

Edgar MacGreagor who directed "The Cat and the Fiddle" and several other successful San Francisco productions is in charge of "When Ladies Meet." Rachel Crothers, who has had over thirty plays produced on Broadway wrote "When Ladies Meet."

Vogue Says

One of the stupidest things in the world is to like things just because they are cheap. It is almost as stupid as to like things just because they are dear. Cheap buying is not economic buying. . . . Two semi-pleasing purchases are never equal to one really satisfactory one. The woman of good fashion-taste knows this—for what is smartness but common sense with snap in it? And, as soon as she balances her budget, she is going to exercise the best choice that it permits her. . . . Quality of mind will always demand quality of matter.

"Q" tells you to accept "Quality always at a price, but never price without quality."

Newberry's Authentic Autobiography

My resignation from the advertising end of the Pacific Cereal Association, a position which I had now held for more than two years, was accepted in principle, but with reservations. Manager Grosjean insisted that I should have an anchor out to windward in my new venture, and made me auditor of the mush factory. He explained,

"You can come up here four or five times a year, audit our books, give the new advertising manager a once-over and advise on his plans, and earn an honest dollar or two to help along. Suit yourself as to when you come and how long you stay. And we'll keep your name on the salary list."

It was a generous offer and a friendly one, even if it implied a doubt of my ability to earn a living at the writing game. Later on, when Grosjean really needed my help to save himself from an unfortunate investment, I was able to repay his kindness in part by getting him out of the mess. Up to the time of his death, a few years ago, I was an employee of his, carried on the books, and whenever I needed to earn extra money could go to San Francisco and become an expert accountant for a time.

But when Bertha and I packed our household goods and left the city for Carmel we had no apprehensions of disaster. The pulp magazines were treating me nicely, and I had a novelette in one and a short story in another for the May issue in the month we moved. The world was my oyster and I had a typewriter to open it with. We would make a camp under the pine tree on our lot, and live al fresco until the house was built. The work of construction would be done by my own hands, assisted in the heavier tasks by Handy, a Chinese loaned me by Devendorf.

We arrived at Monterey by the noon train, and got ourselves and luggage aboard Sam Power's horse-drawn stage for conveyance over the hill. Besides ourselves, there were two men and a woman passenger for Carmel. The jog trot at which gait we began the journey soon degenerated into a walk as the grade stiffened, and about two-thirds the way to the summit, Powers brought the team to a halt, and invited all male passengers to get down and walk. He explained,

"These hosses can pull me, these two ladies, the luggage, and Mrs. Williams' eight pound roast of beef to the top of the hill, and that's all. The rest of us has to walk, and no money refunded. Gid-dap!"

Ankle-deep in dust we men made the last steep ascent on our own power, and at that had to wait the stage which was stopping every few hundred yards to breathe the horses. But on the down-hill side of the summit, all of us again in our places, the horses at a trot, Sam Powers began pointing out interesting things with his whip.

"See that bear over yonder?" he said, to get a gasp of astonishment from Bertha, on the seat beside him. "That bunch of pines, I mean. Looks just exactly like a big grizzly bear, r'aring to claw someone. See it?"

My eye following his whipstock, caught an irregular shape of foliage on the sky-line that might be mistaken by a strongly imaginative eye as a r'aring bear. Sam pointed to another with, "And that clump is an eagle ready to fly. And over yonder—"

"I see! It's a frog leaping over a lilypad!" Bertha cried.

"We'll, p'rhaps," Sam drawled. "To me it looked more like a camel kneeling. But mebbe you're right. Gid-dap!"

We rounded the last few curves into Ocean avenue and drew up before Leidig's grocery at San Carlos street with a flourish. Here the two men got out and went inside. "Drummers, both of 'em," Sam explained, "Business is sure picking up in Carmel. Ain't ever seen that happen before—two grocery salesmen in one day."

"Let us off at Pine Inn," I ordered. "This journey has given me an appetite."

As we came up to the hotel, a "Yoo-hee!" from behind turned our eyes to where George Sterling was hastening to catch us, waving a mandatory hand. He shouted, "Don't get out! You're coming to my place," and when he came alongside and grasped our hands, "Dinner's waiting at the house, Bertha. And you're to stay with us until your place is ready. Turn around, Sam, and take us to the Eighty Acres."

"Ought to be a law against people changing their minds," Sam grumbled. "Gid-dap!"

Sterling had been living part of his time in Carmel for several years, and much of the poetry which went into the two books of verse published at that time, "The Testimony of the Suns and Other Poems" and "A Wine of Wizardry and Other Poems," had been written in Carmel. He was regarded as one of the poetic geniuses of America, and Ambrose Bierce and Edwin Markham divided honors as his discoverer. With his wife, Carrie, he lived in a rambling frame house that overlooked a ravine in the midst of a pine woods, the only house in that neighborhood.

There was a group of other dinner guests gathered in the big living room, and mint juleps were being absorbed avidly, the unimportant part of the concoction coming from a stream in the ravine, where a big bed of mint grew lushly. We were introduced to Sinclair Lewis, called "Red" for hisute reasons; Upton Sinclair, whose "The Jungle" I had read; and to Mary Austin, although we had met her before in the old Coppas days. One had to be introduced to Mary Austin frequently. Harry Lafler had come in from his place down the coast, and welcomed us with the glad news that a load of shakes, frowed by his own hand, was upon our lot ready for house building.

I was anxious to get away to the lot and begin fixing up our camp there, for I had no intention of accepting George's kind invitation to remain with them, but there came no reasonable opportunity to break from the party. After a pic-nicky dinner, served all over the place, inside and out, we found ourselves headed towards a meeting of the Forest Theater society, elsewhere in the forest over narrow trails. To our insistence that we were not members of the organization, and really didn't know what it was all about, the others answered that everybody living in Carmel belonged, and we'd soon learn about it. Finally we came out of the woods, crossed a road, and found ourselves before a house upon whose porch and steps in chairs, stools and upon cushions, sprawled a dozen or more men, women, girls and boys. A young man with an earnest face was talking, and we found places without impeding his flow of words.

"That's Herbert Heron," George whispered to me. "The Forest Theater is his idea—"

"His and mine," Mary Austin said, sotto voce, from my other side. "I thought of it first." Then I listened to Heron.

"The idea is to give local playwrights an opportunity to see their offerings produced in a fitting manner," he said, "amid beautiful surroundings, with fine casts of local actors—"

"Where are they?" asked somebody. "Actors or playwrights?"

"Right here among you, actors and playwrights. We will develop them, and help them to success. The first thing is to raise money enough to build a stage, seats for the auditorium, dressingrooms and the essentials of a theater. The question before this meeting is how to raise that money."

"That's always the question," remarked somebody. "We have here," Heron went on, scorning the interruption, "some of the brightest business minds of Carmel. About us, sitting here and there, I see Joseph W. Hand, Fred Leidig, Thomas Reardon, and others who have brains that team with financial ideas, men whose great success in life has been due to their ability to raise money. Let us hear from Mr. Hand."

"Joe! Joe!" cried the audience, as a tall, slender man came to his feet, smiling and bowed cheerfully. He said,

"I have given but little study bills— as yet to the problem before us, but I have no doubt it can be resolved. At first flush, the idea presents itself of assessing every member of the organization—"

"No—no—no!" from the members of the organization. "First flush seems to be a bob-tailed one," Joe Hand continued. "An assessment is never popular. Perhaps I had better call upon Mr. Reardon for financial advice."

"Haven't an idea," growled Thomas Reardon, from his seat on the steps.

"Or on Mr. Fred Leidig," Hand said. "We'll—"

Leidig bobbed up earnestly— "I'd say make the Development Company pay the

"Hurrah! Hooray! Tiger!" from the meeting.

"You've said something!" from Sterling. Heron hammered for order on the porch rail. When enthusiasm over Leidig's suggestion had sobered sufficiently, Heron moved that a committee be appointed to wait upon Mr. Devendorf and notify him that the meeting had decided that his company should pay for building the theater. I was voting loudly for that when Bertha tapped my shoulder, and whispered in my ear, "Slip away quietly, and we'll get down on our lot. I don't want to sleep in George Sterling's chicken-coop! I just won't!"

IS THAT SO?

By Winsor Josselyn

Post Office salesmanship could be boosted, according to a gentleman who had leased the front half of the post office table as a downtown resting place.

"Stamps, for instance," said he pounding the table. "Instead of letting a customer leave with six cents' worth, the boy in the wickets should say, 'Lady, help the Government and take a lot. Take a dollar's worth. Those you don't use—you can tear up!'"

Don Staniford, our reliable source of material day or night, has followed our footsteps and turned musical critic. Yesterday he gave an impassioned critique, before enraptured listeners, of a recent recital which, he insisted, had a star number entitled: "Butterflies Jumping Over Bullfrogs."

Mr. Galt Bell, director of drama, has busted the auto body paint trust. Next time you see his sleek Ford gentleman's drive-about, notice its smooth, shining paint job. But don't rub it with an inquisitive finger. You may be on one of the grease paint sections, shade No. 13—Olive. For Galt was menaced by a barbed wire fence during the Great Flood of recent history and when he got his pride and joy into the garage he found the paint looking like the finish on a barroom piano.

No time to lay the car up for new coachwork. Out with the makeup box and presto! a few touches of Stein's Ground, a swipe of Surface Powder and once more a band-box gentleman's drive-about.

Don't point accusing fingers at us in the library as we pore over nit-wit magazines. We are only practicing—getting in shape for an afternoon with the Big Four. Yes, sir, you've got to brace yourself for the classics... they're that dull.

Thank God for telephones. When callers phone, you can be in or you can be out—or just putting on your hat.

And now there's one more angle of this calling business. We'll suppose that the people who have rung up are good joes and you want 'em, but they've chosen to arrive smack-dab in the middle of a radio hour that you just won't miss, politeness or no politeness.

Why doesn't some radio concern advertise Radio Etiquette, and what social crimes to avoid regarding it? We mean just like the medical outfits that holler about having unsuspected physical handicaps that rob you of life's most dangerous moments. Let them say:

"You may not even dream it! But the reason you haven't been asked back to the C. Mortimer Henderson hacienda is that you came bounding in right in the midst of Mr. Henderson's favorite radio program—Dr. Trephe's Message To Men. Always be sure to find out your host's program preference, or else accept the consequences of social oblivion!"

We're going to take up tennis—or maybe badminton. Not so much for the game as for the swank sitting around afterward. People we know well (and know well we could beat at any five other selected games) loll in thick-eyed ease after tennis, or badminton, all polo-coated and muffled in turkish towels and damp of hair and look so doggone hoity-toity that we're needed with envy.

So we guess it's tennis—or maybe even badminton.

Delos Curtis is the man to thank for the sunshine. Day after day he has gone through his mystic mummerly out in front of his store—the secret Sun Chant of the Carmel Indians—and at last the sun is out again. When you see him sitting out there, yachting cap over an eye, just remember that there's Carmel's sun bringer.

If, by chance, he's sitting in front of neighbor Carl Rohr's, his perfectly logical explanation will be that he doesn't want to wear out his own store-front while working for the whole community.

Another item pertaining to radio is here released by the Pine Cone Science Service, always lending a helping hand.

"With only one radio set in the home nowadays, and with all the relatives who have come to live with you, it is impossible to set the loudness of a station to the approval of all. Here is the solution: our patent Ear Muffs. They are adjustable to any head. Each muff carries a movable diaphragm. The radio set is turned on full blast and each member of the household opens or closes the listening diaphragms according to whether he wants loud or soft music.

"It is suggested, however, that windows and neighbors be tested before this plan is put into practice.

The "Giving The Body A Rest Society" is gaining noted converts in Carmel. Many of our leading citizens have joined it, either in one or more Degrees of Restfulness, and the membership is expected to hold up well—until the next run of big holidays.

In Ewig's grocery window there was a display of dog food. It looked like squashed corks wrapped in a cloth checker board. Sitting aloofly in front of the window was a snooty, portly fox terrier.

"What," we asked, "is this—a living example?"

"Correct," admitted Mr. Ewig. "Not only is that a living example, but that is Duke, by name. Duke has been pensioned by the dog food company. He discovered what to do with the biscuits that he had left over from lunch. We found him one day carefully smoothing the checkered sack and using the biscuits as checker men, and sales jumped three times when a picture of him was sent to the kennels throughout the nation."

Here's one to tell around the next bottle of beer.

Some gents loaded a high-sided truck with heavy firewood. They took it to the customer's house and were told to unload it in the garage. The entrance was steep and the garage low. The sides of the truck barely scraped in under the garage entrance.

The truck was unloaded. Its springs, relieved of weight, rose several inches. The truck began backing cut and—whango! it hit the top of the entrance. Like the aeroplane that was built in a basement and couldn't be got out, here was a problem.

American ingenuity to the fore. A whole neighborhood of small children had appeared from nowhere and they were offered a ride. Gleeefully they got aboard and were directed to jump up and down all together. After three good jumps in unison the springs swung low enough so that on the fourth down movement the truck was able to shoot out and up the driveway.

Carmel garage architects please take both pause and measurement.

New Telephone Directory Is Issued for This Area

Carmelites were busy this week, glancing through the many pages of a new book and checking up on their friends.

Around 600 brand new telephone books were being distributed to residents. The books contain revised numbers and addresses from August 1931 until the present.

The distribution of the books is a strange sight for Carmel. Fifteen years ago, there were three telephones in the village—so there!

Edward H. Tickle, state senator of Carmel Highlands was the principal speaker at the annual chamber of commerce banquet in Pacific Grove Tuesday night. Legislative matters now under consideration were discussed by sen-

No Babies Will Be Born in 1933!

It's the depression
There won't be any babies, and so of course there won't be any baby carriages sold. No kids will go to school, so there won't be any school clothes sold, nor books, nor pencils. ● Leaky roofs will be allowed to leak; there'll be no roof patching done. Same way with shoe soles and inner tubes. In fact, things in general will just discontinue for a while, indefinitely... unless someone is crazy enough to keep on telling what they have to sell. ● Well, we for one outfit are just that crazy; and if you feel silly, too, we'll gladly help you to "keep on telling" in a way that will create new business.

Supervisors Act To Guard Beauty Of Coast Highway

Protection of the Carmel-San Simeon highway against the establishment of commercialized enterprises like hot dog stands and unsightly service stations and billboards appeared certain this week following action taken by the supervisors.

recommendation made by the planning commission, adopted an "interim ordinance" which zones land for 500 feet on either side of the highway for agricultural purposes. The ordinance will be effective for eight months.

No restriction is placed on the use of the land for agricultural purposes. Construction of service stations and similar commercialized projects must have the approval of the supervisors before they are permitted.

The ordinance now in effect

The supervisors, acting on a will act to prevent despoliation of the scenic road, pending formal zoning of the land.

During the same session of the supervisors, a letter asking to preserve the beauty of Monterey county highways was read from Mrs. Vera Peck Millis of Carmel, secretary of the Monterey History and Art association.

A petition bearing one thousand names and circulated by the Carmel Woman's club against billboards on county highways was also read.

Addison Mizner Succumbs Following Long Illness

Funeral services were held in Florida this week for Addison Mizner, well known Carmelite and an internationally famous architect who died Monday after an illness of several months, according to word received here by his friends.

Mizner had made his home in Carmel valley for many years and was prominent among the local literary and social circle. Mizner was a protege of the famous Stanford White and did most of his outstanding work in Florida.

Several homes in Pebble Beach, including his own in Carmel valley were designed by him. One of them is now occupied by his niece, Mrs. McKim Hollins.

Mizner broke into the newspapers all over the country last year with the publication of an autobiography, "The Many Mizners," which attracted wide attention. His brother, Wilson Mizner, playwright and humorist lives in Hollywood.

New Monterey Group Keep On Working

Among other battles being fought by the merchants association of New Monterey toward betterment of their city as a whole, comes a new which involves a checkup on the Monterey to search for loopholes which would permit further reduction of city expense.

Bill Sorensen, the spark in the sparkplug of the group is to circulate a petition asking that a two week extension of the fishing period be granted. That New Monterey will do all in its power to further scrip circulation as well as other unemployment relief programs, was a resolution. Several other matters were discussed briefly.

Pistol Club Planning Another "Goat Shoot"

On the heel of a successful "goat shoot" which lasted for two months and was won by George Wood Jr., a similar event starts this Sunday under the auspices of the Carmel pistol club.

Members of the club shoot at small goat heads the size of a dollar. The member who gets the highest score comes out the winner. The first and third Sunday in each month will be devoted to rapid fire practice.

Carmel Saddened By Death of Wm. T. Beatty

News of the tragic death of William T. Beatty, which occurred in San Francisco Monday, came as a shock to his many friends and acquaintances in Carmel, where he was known and loved. A man of large affairs, head of the Osborne Manufacturing Company at Chicago, Beatty spent a part of his time on the Monterey making his home at Pebble Beach, and had a lively interest in Carmel's community matters, particularly the drama and music.

Mr. Beatty, whose home, The Oaks at Pebble Beach, is one of the beautiful places of that district, also bought and built several houses in and around Carmel, rest and convenience. Until his last illness, he was a great walker, and liked to stop in his pedestrian tours to rest and read in his own place, his favorite books around him. His tower-like, brown rock retreat in Hatton Fields, overlooking the sea and mountains, is of much interest. Mr. Beatty is survived by a widow and a niece, residing at Pebble Beach, and by a daughter in the East.

The Devil Walks

By Herbert Cerwin

Carmel received its first whiff of spring this week, and out came white flannels and beach pajamas . . . but we must tread lightly on the subject, for by the time we're on the press, we might again be shivering under our winter coats. That's Carmel.

Somehow we survive through weeks of fogs and rain and the moment we are ready to depart for warmer climes, out comes the sunshine. And then we just can't leave Carmel.

Yet fog and rain and the roaring of the surf, we are told, goes hand in hand with artistic inspiration.

Jeffers tells us poetry never flows so easily from his pen as on a stormy night. And for William Silva, foggy weather is ideal for painting.

Yet we know one Carmel writer that didn't pen a line during the rain of the past few weeks. All his efforts went in digging ditches to keep his house from floating away.

For weeks now, Col. Clair Foster has been returning from the postoffice, his arms loaded with mail from all over the country. And all because his name slipped into the front pages of newspapers when he divulged how through a short wave sender, another radio operator thousands of miles away in frozen Alaska, was rescued from asphyxiation.

In his mail were letters from a woman who wanted to marry but didn't have the money for a wedding dress . . . a man who had a scheme in which a million could be made over night . . . a stenographer who had a play that should be on Broadway . . . a college youth who knew he could become a fine radio operator, if Mr. Foster would only buy him a set.

Why all the letters? The newspapers said Col. Foster was a retired millionaire.

Ella Winter, Lincoln Steffens' wife has a book on Russia coming out next month. The title as announced by the publishers is "Red Virtue."

A. A. Proctor, editor of Adventure paying the highest of any of the pulps—up to 12 cents a word—had occasion to remonstrate with Stephen A. Reynolds about the "brutality" of one of his whaling stories.

Reynolds had the captain-villain transfixed by the pointed two and a half pound bomb from a brass whale-gun, and blown to atoms when the bomb's second time fuse burned through to the giant powder. He toned down the story and the check came through.

Later, however, Reynolds wrote Editor Proctor, protesting that life in the forecabin of a whaler was a rough spot, and submitting at the same time a yarn entitled "Yo-ho-ho and the Barrel of Rum." It was so absolutely brutal that it sold for that reason alone.

The story appears in a forthcoming issue of Adventure.

True Story for the week: The youngsters on San Antonio street who prepared tea for their friends by brewing poison oak leaves.

Carmel Outdoor School Teaches Self-Reliance

Declaring that the psychological approach through play activities yields the greatest returns in educating the young children, Henriette Klein, director of the Carmel Outdoor School, corner of Eighth and Carmelo, emphasizes her contention by presenting her group of preschool children with an environment filled to overflowing with every variety of play material. "Children, like adults," says Mrs. Klein, "learn quickly and easily when they are having fun. The years before formal school training offer the best time for social adjustment, for development of leadership qualities, and for training in manual activities."

Behavior problems, which are largely born of boredom, melt away when children are absorbed in constructive activity.

Youngsters directing a puppet show or making a doll house of orange boxes, as they do in this interesting new Carmel school, are too busy to get into "trouble." The simple grounds and sunny four-room house, furnished with child-size chairs, tables and lockers, offer splendid opportunity for a child to learn independence and self-reliance, but not much chance for "don'ts."

"We are changing our name," says Mrs. Klein, "from Carmel Play School to Carmel Outdoor School, because we found that many people, unaware of the constructive type of play materials presented to the children felt that four- and five-year-olds ought to be learning something, not just playing. Even our clay modelling and painting is done out-of-doors and in sunsuits when possible—so we are truly an outdoor school thanks to Carmel's sunny winters."

Children from two to five are received at the school five mornings a week at a nominal fee. Mrs. Klein, who majored in psychology during her university years, has had postgraduate work in education, and six years of acquaintance with nursery schools, including the well-known "Children's Community" in Berkeley.

Christian Science Churches

"Soul" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, February 12, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon will include the following from the Bible: "And when Jesus departed thence, two blind men followed him, crying, and saying, Thou son of David, have mercy on us. And when he was come into the house, the blind men came to him: and Jesus saith unto them, Believe ye that I am able to do this? They said unto him, Yea, Lord. Then touched he their eyes, saying, According to your faith be it unto you. And their eyes were opened" (Matt. 9:27-30).

The Lesson-Sermon also will include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Neither age nor accident can interfere with the senses of Soul, and there are no other real senses . . . Spirit's senses are without pain, and they are forever at peace. Nothing can hide from them the harmony of all things and the might and permanence of Truth" (p. 214).

Peninsula Organizations Support Highway Zoning

A number of Monterey peninsula and Carmel organizations are joining in support of the local movement to zone the Carmel-San Simeon highway against the establishment of commercial enterprises and bill board signs.

Last week, Milton Latham of Carmel spoke before the Monterey peninsula Exchange club on the importance of zoning the highway. After his talk, the club passed a resolution urging the supervisors to consider the matter. Similar resolutions have been passed by the Pacific Grove Woman's club and the Carmel city council.

THE SPARK OF INDIVIDUALITY

Every now and then we read something to the effect that Carmel's individuality and distinction are to be lost because of this or that innovation. Whatever the hovering danger of the moment is, it "will kill every spark of individuality in Carmel in two years time." This wail has gone up again and again during the years that Carmel has been a village of individuality, and we are still here, still full of individuality, despite prophecy.

In fact there has never been a time with stronger indications of those qualities that go to make the sort of a village we want than today. Take this recent zoning fight, with the whole people of Carmel determined to keep commercialism off the highway, all fighting shoulder to shoulder. The best intentioned, tightest organized, highly idealized, strongly combatted scrap in years. It has been watched by the press and people all over the state, and the comments of newspapers in cities along highways that have been allowed to go hot-doggy and shabby, have been more than flattering.

Or, for a sample of the rise of distinction in Carmel, look over the musical program here for this winter. Compare this with the situation five years back. At the first concert of the Carmel Music Society last month, 900 people crowded the hall and 200 were turned away. A few years ago an audience of 100 for a concert would have been considered good.

Prophets who see a future with Carmel just plain ordinary, with "every spark of individuality" killed, should look back over the pages of history in our village, and take a lesson from the past. When the electric light poles began going up in our streets, Carmel headed directly for the bow-wows. When the telephone wires came over the hill, Carmel didn't have a chance in the world to dodge oblivion. The installation of gas mains in our streets spelled finis for Carmel. Our individuality has been threatened by every modern innovation, yet somehow it has persisted, and grown stronger, regardless of the croaking of the prophets.

For Carmel's individuality is no weak plant to wither and die at the first chill blast of modern commercial methods. Its roots go deep down in the earth where no

PREFERENCE

I am a lover of white:
Birches mirrored in a pool,
A pigeon's throat, a swan's wing,
Nacreous moon on fairy ring,
Forest lilies, waxen cool,
Snow—and blossoms drifting down,
A bridal gown.

I am a lover of flame:
The sun's torch, a burning leaf,
A burnished bowl, saffron skies,
Glowworms, fireflies,
Star-candles, a golden sheaf,
Tulips' blaze, a poppy's flare
Your hair.

I am a lover of black:
A silent night when petals quake,
The arching sides of noble steeds,
A necklace made of jet-black beads,
The haunting depths of a bottomless lake,
Teakwood polished lustre-bright;
I am a lover of black,
Since that night.

Muriel Thurston,
in Westward

QUESTION

Have you ever seen the moon
Slip greenly down a ripple at your feet?
Or heard a distant bell
Flung on the wind go singing to the stars?

Or felt the cool lagoon
Kiss in your palm, like any lover sweet?
Or caught a fleeting smell
Of faery gardens hung on farther shores?

Or found a stolen dream
Lodged in a cranny in a foreign wall,
Where some forgotten gleam
Had led you, when all dreams were past recall?

Don Harvey Bell,
in Troubadour

frosts can hurt them. It can weather much worst storms than any that face it now.

HYDRANTS AND FAUCETS

Something like $40,000 has been paid out by the city of Carmel in rentals for its fire hydrants during the time that they have been installed. And we continue to pay each year more than $3,000 for having them here. The entire cost of installing the hydrants and attending to their up-keep is paid the water company by the city every three years, it is estimated.

Action has been taken by the city council to reduce this seemingly enormous expense, and Pacific Grove and Monterey will join with Carmel in a protest before the State Railroad Commission. It is a timely action, in accord with the universal desire to hold municipal expenses to the minimum and keep taxes within reason. But it should not be at the expense of the individual water users. The cost of water at the faucet is too high now, and should not be allowed to go higher. And any excuse for increasing water rates will be seized upon by the company.

THE NEW POSTOFFICE

Carefully prepared arguments favoring a postoffice site in the residence section of Carmel have left us cold. That there need not be a business district close by and adjoining the postoffice may be logical, but it will not be factual. So long as our postoffice is a mail-box and delivery window proposition, with our people coming for their mail—which we hope it may continue to be for many years—there will be shops and stores beside it and around it.

Nor can we see anything in the argument that at some far distant day, an extension of the business district will be necessary; or that when that day comes, the extension must go southward on Dolores street. We believe the present zoning for business will cover the requirements of a larger city than Carmel will ever be, and that within that zone are sites sufficient for the expansion of its retail district. The new postoffice should be within the present business zone, and in the best location for the people of a present-day Carmel.

People Talked About

When you turn the knob of your radio and listen once a week to the state-wide network broadcasting the adventures of the Golden State family Robinson—you can be quite sure that they are true to life.

And furthermore, they are written right here in Carmel by Freeman Tilden, the author, who has been wintering in the village. Tilden believes there is nothing more dramatic than real life and has proved it by finding in every-day existence pulsing episodes which have made him famous as a fiction writer.

Thousands of readers of books and national magazines have followed his human stories for the past several decades while thousands more now listen to the adventures of the family Robinson. Tilden pioneered in the realm of stories about common people, stories that ring true. He saw the drama of life all about him—not the spectacular but the little lives —and he enjoyed writing about it. The beginning of this was years before the present wave of realism in popular literature.

Tilden for a long time wrote simultaneously for the Saturday Evening Post, Ladies Home Journal and other national magazines, in addition to getting out a number of important novels. Lately he has devoted considerable time to writing for the radio.

Tilden and his family are planning to make their home here for some time, and both their children are enrolled in local schools.

I intend to spend a bit of my reserve force, that vitality which my doctor seems anxious to have me maintain, in hearing "Pinafore" sung at the Community Theatre. In fact I'd rather hear "Pinafore" than be president. And I'd rather sing in "Pinafore" than be a Carmel councilman.

It was my first appearance on the stage in the winter of 1882.

I played the Midshipmite in "Pinafore" and sang it straight through from the opening chorus to the closing climax. I was 12 years old, and sang soprano.

My father was Captain Corcoran; my mother was Little Buttercup; we were a musical family. Four or five years later, I was again in "Pinafore" this time in the chorus. "O, we sail the ocean blue, and our saucy ships of beauty." "Over the bright blue sea comes Sir Joseph Porter, K.C.B."

Whenever "Pinafore" is given in a town where I am, I see it. Once I went on a one-day excursion to Presque Isle, a place of many attractions like at Coney Island. I spent the entire afternoon listening to an open-air production of "Pinafore." The double entendre in the phrase, "Silence be! It was the cat!" is my idea of real humor. The love of Josephine for Ralph Rackstraw, the sailor, is a perfect idyll of romance.

So I am going to have a seat in the first four rows near center for one night anyway, and warn those purchasing adjoining seats that I will probably hum every number through, and may break out in my strong baritone voice in the choruses.

John Masefield, England's poet laureate, has expressed himself desirous of meeting two men during his visit to America, one of whom is Robinson Jeffers. In an interview for the New York Herald-Tribune, given as the poet left the Mauretania at the dock, Masefield said that he would like to meet Stephen Vincent Benet and Robinson Jeffers because he likes their recent works. "He thinks verse-writing grows more difficult with age," the interview goes on. "He has composed as many as three thousand, and as few as five lines a day."

"William Butler Yeats, in his estimation, is the greatest poet writing today in the English language. 'He is my master,' he said simply.

"There was some question as to whether Mr. Masefield is the first laureate to visit America while in office, or the first to visit and speak publicly, some one contending that the late Robert Bridges had retired as laureate when he came to America and refused to be interviewed. Was it possible to lose the position once it was acquired?

"Oh, I think you can get the sack, all right," the present laureate said laconically. "I don't know just how, but I'm sure it can be managed."

Austin James, Carmel sculptor and Mrs. James are visiting countless ports and dozens of different countries. But they want to keep in close contact with Carmel, and so each weekly issue of the Pine Cone follows them closely.

Whether they are in Hongkong, Paris or Naples, they receive the Pine Cone but a few days after it's off the press.

Mrs. A. Ettelson of Pasadena spent the week end in Carmel.

THE VILLAGE NEWS-REEL

Mrs. D. G. Lang of Palo Alto has been visiting at the home of her daughter Miss Helen Turner for the past week. Mr. Lang joined her the latter part of the week. Mr. and Mrs. Lang were former residents of Carmel.

Miss E. O'Sullivan is at home again after spending two weeks in San Francisco where she took in several theatrical productions and concerts.

Charles Roberts Aldrich, Carmel writer and scientist has abandoned his typewriter for the next few weeks to enjoy a camping trip above King City.

Mrs. Chester Shephard entertained last week at her home members of the Monterey peninsula league of women voters. Mrs. F. S. Townsend of Carmel assisted Mrs. Shephard in serving tea.

Dorothy Vane a member of the English nobility is registered at Pine Inn for an indefinite stay in Carmel. Mrs. Vane is well known as a painter and expects to do considerable art work during her visit here. Mrs. Vane first came to Carmel seven years ago and liked it so well that she returned at her first opportunity.

Another group of winter visitors in Carmel who are contemplating to remain in the village for some months include Mrs. William Moffit of St. Louis and her sister, Mrs. Charles Palms of Detroit. They are accompanied by Miss Ellen Bates and Miss Martha Conley.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Condon of Los Gatos were the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Condon at their home on the Mesa.

Charlie Sayers, Carmel wood-carver and designer, has just returned from Oakland where he has been fulfilling a contract to design and carve both the interior and exterior woodwork of an English type house. He is also conducting classes in Oakland and San Francisco besides the ones in Carmel.

Miss Louise Flemming entertained a number of her friends at her home here over the week end.

Earl Graft of Carmel Dairy and Jo Mora do not seem to mind the type of transportation they employ when they go calling on their friends. Sunday the two men arrived at a number of their Pebble Beach friend's homes in one of the Dairy delivery trucks.

Raleigh Belvail, delivery man for Carmel Dairy was a bit startled Monday morning when on his rounds with the milk he came back on the street and found that his truck was no where to be seen. A frantic search was made and Belvail discovered to his amazement that the brakes on the truck had slipped and the machine had run down a hill, gone over a bank and ended up in a canyon near the Carmel Mission.

Jesse Watts on San Simeon road work narrowly escaped serious injury when the five ton truck that he was driving rolled over an embankment and crashed into a ditch. Watts is being treated for a wrenched back.

Tom Fisher, brother-in-law of E. H. Tickle state senator, was knocked down by a large boulder that was rolling down an embankment on the state highway in the Highlands. The rock hit him in the middle of the back, but fortunately did not injure him. He rose after a few minutes and resumed work.

Mrs. Stuart Smith of Los Gatos visited friends in Carmel last week-end. Mrs. Smith is a former resident of Carmel.

Mrs. Etta Stackpole merchant of Carmel had as her guest last week-end Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rappe of Watsonville.

David Butler, Fox film director was in town for a few days rest at the completion of his latest picture "Department Store." He has already returned to Hollywood.

John and Carl von Saltza visited their home in Carmel over the weekend. Both boys are prominent at Stanford University.

Vida W. Butler, Carmel resident, left for San Francisco for a short trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Beller have left for an indefinite stay at Santa Fe, New Mexico. They plan to be gone from six months to a year. Beller plans to spend his time painting the exotic wonders of the New Mexico country during his stay.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Crouch and their two daughters Jean and Wilma will arrive in Carmel soon. They will make their home at Eighth and Lincoln streets where Crouch has a new home nearing completion.

The Crouchs are well known in Carmel. Crouch first came here in 1918 together with R. A. Peckham who pioneered the automobile business here with Carl Harris of Carl's auto service. Mr. Crouch has spent a great deal of time in Carmel, and is pleased with the possibility of making his permanent home here.

J. Francis Smith, field secretary of The Theatre League has been spending the week in Carmel studying the possibility of bringing professional theatrical productions to the village.

Dr. and Mrs. William S. Young are visiting Barnet Segal in Carmel. Dr. Young is at present a professor of chemistry at University California of Los Angeles. He was formally connected with the Carnegie Institute here.

Mrs. Margaret Wales, sister of Elizabeth McClung White, Carmel realtor, is visiting her sister at her Mountain View Street home. Mrs. Wales is from Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wilson of Berkeley and Carmel entertained as their house guests in her charming group of cottages on Casanova street, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Sperry and Mrs. Glass.

Mrs. Tobin Clark, and Miss Patsy Clark of Pebble Beach are leaving for Europe where Mrs. Clark will join her daughter, Agnes who has been studying in Paris.

Miss Rhoda Spafford is now living on Casanova street between Eleventh and Twelfth for the winter. She is here making a special study of creative piano work.

Miss Wilna Kropf is gold mining in the Bret Harte country. Reports state that she is near making a big strike. All miners are.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morse were in Carmel for the week end. They came here from Palo Alto for the Badminton tournament with the Old Monterey Polo club.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bragg were in town for the week end. Mrs. Bragg plans to remain a week or two while Mr. Bragg had to return to Fresno to his business.

A charming tea party was given by Mrs. Grace Douglas for her house-guest, Mrs. Lorrin Hillman of Los Angeles. Those attending were Mrs. Robinson Jeffers, Mr. and Mrs. James Fitzgerald, and Dick Collins.

Mr. and Mrs. William Galland and their son Marshal who were staying at Pebble Beach, for two weeks have returned to Los Angeles.

Miss Pat Clark had as her house-guest at her Pebble Beach home, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mailard and Agnes Shea.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dornin of Berkeley are spending a week at their Carmel home.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hartley returned to their home on the Point after an extended tour of New York and other eastern cities. They were away from Carmel since October and motored across the continent.

Mr. and Mrs. David Ball were back this week at their Hatton Field's home following a month's absence in the east. Mr. Ball rushed to New York City because of illness in his family.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Russell of Carmel Valley who have been away since December are returning to their home shortly.

A delightful surprise birthday party was given this week for Mr. Fred Parle, popular young Monterey man.

Those present included the Misses Patricia Holman, Virginia Dutcher, Patsy Stutzman, Neva Smith. The young gentlemen attending included Bill Davison, Hershel Jones, Mr. Burt Rehart.

Dancing was the principal occupation of the evening, though incidental entertainment and delicious refreshments added to a most happy time.

Mrs. Daniel Willard, assisted by her daughter Miss Helen Willard, entertained at a delightful tea last Sunday afternoon in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Elstner Hilton of Pebble Beach. Among the guests present were: Mrs. Hilton Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Chapel Judson, Mr. and Mrs. David Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Burk, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Sowell, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Morse, Mr. and Mrs. Midkiff,

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hartley, Mrs. Monteagle and Mrs. Gwyn Stearns, Miss Gertrude Rendtorff, Miss Helen Woosley, Miss Susie Pipes, Miss Betty and Ann Greene, Mrs. Beatrice Ralston, Miss Agnes Ford, Mrs. Agnes Purdy, Mrs. Francis Carl and her house guest, Miss Marion House, Mrs. Shackleford, Mrs. Royle, Dr. Williams, Winsor Josselyn, Mr. Ladlaw Williams, Mr. Michel Penha, Mr. Herbert Sorenson, Mr. Ralph Linsley, Mr. Abraham Weiss.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Selgrath of San Jose spent the week end in Carmel as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Wishart. Mr. Selgrath is Mrs. Wishart's brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Lindstrom and their daughter Barbara are now back in their own home at 4th and Monte Verde street.

Miss Barbara Lindstrom is recovering from an operation on her tonsils last week and will be returning to school Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Holman announce the engagement of their daughter Marion to Mr. Vernon Hurd of Stockton. Both young people are graduates of the College of the Pacific. Hurd is associated with the district attorney's office in Stockton.

Miss Holman is a niece of Mr. W. R. Holman, owner of Holman's Department Store, and a niece of Mrs. Gordon Knowles of Pacific Grove.

Miss Holman and her mother are leaving for a cruise of the South Seas on February 15th.

Mrs. F. C. Rutchow and her son of Burlingame have been the guest of Mrs. M. C. Chapin at her Carmel home.

Strange Crime Orgy Leads To Prison After Attack on Woman

Long prison terms this week awaited two Monterey men, following their brutal attack on Mrs. Marion Collier, Carmel resident, who Friday night was beaten into unconsciousness in one of the strangest orgies of crime that has come to the attention of authorities.

The two, Hardie Richards, 33 and Ernest Shepherd, 23, are being held in the county jail at Salinas pending a plea of guilty which they are scheduled to enter when their hearing is held in the superior court.

Mrs. Collier was walking up Carmel hill on her way home when two men overtook her and invited her to ride. At first Mrs. Collier refused, but both Richards and Shepherd were so insistent, she finally accepted.

Instead of taking her home, however, the car proceeded down the Carmel valley highway. Mrs. Collier frantically asked them to stop the car. When she tried to leap, Richards who was riding in the back seat, struggled with her and then proceeded to strike blows.

Two miles down the valley road, both men struck her until she dropped to the ground unconscious. She was left there dazed and bleeding and more than half an hour passed before she had enough strength to get up and walk to the nearest telephone where she communicated with police.

Mrs. Collier was immediately taken to the El Adobe hospital in Monterey where ten stitches on her head had to be taken in addition to treatment for cuts and bruises.

As far as Richards and Shepherd were concerned, the orgy had not come to an end. By Lover's Point, in Oak Grove they drove an automobile operated by Fred Weber of Monterey off the road. Weber was accompanied by Miss Gertrude Childress also of Monterey.

Using similar tactics as before, the two men once more proceeded to beat Miss Childress and Weber. Then frightened, they leaped into their car and disappeared. A few hours later both Richards and Shepherd were picked up by police.

After being grilled by Chief of Police Fred Moore and Argyll Campbell, deputy district attorney, the two confessed to the assault. They face one to 50 years in prison.

Mrs. Collier is employed as a servant in a local home. She has been a resident in the village for sometime.

Step Ladder May Be Used to Cast Votes

If an election was called at this time, Carmel voters would have to use stepladders to mark the ballots which would be more than eight feet long to contain all the state issues now up for consideration.

There are 136 proposed constitutional amendments at the present time before the state legislature. If all these were passed, a summary of each would appear on the ballot for the people's approval. It is recalled here that in 1914, the ballots were three feet long and only contained forty-eight propositions.

Dime Store Will Not Establish in Carmel

Contrary to rumors that have been circulating in Carmel for several weeks, a five-and-ten cent store will not establish quarters in the village.

According to a letter received by Charles F. deLannoy, Carmel contractor, from the officials of the dime store, they have never planned and are not contemplating

"either at this time or in the future to open a branch in Carmel."

Central Bureau For Relief To Be Formed

Establishment of a central bureau for the co-ordination of all social welfare and relief activities on the Monterey peninsula loomed definitely this week following a meeting held in Monterey by the Committee of Fifteen.

Through the central bureau, relief work can be carried out without duplication and in a more adequate manner. During the meeting, H. D. Coon told of the working of the Unemployed Relief council and Ney Otis, county welfare officer, reported on what aid he was giving to those in need on the peninsula.

Mrs. Sidney Fish of Carmel valley presided at the meeting as chairman of the committee of fifteen. Mrs. Howard Hatton and Harry Larouette represented Carmel at the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wein-gartner of Boulder Creek spent the weekend in Carmel as the house-guests of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Abernethy of San Antonio and Eighth streets.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas White of Carmelo street were called to San Francisco to attend the funeral of a friend.

The second event of the Carmel Music Society winter series will be no less brilliant than the opening, when a hundred or more were turned from the door of an overfilled house. Michel Penha, celebrated cellist, will give a program of music for the cello on Saturday evening, February 25, in Sunset School Auditorium.

Penha's name is known throughout Europe, South America, the United States and Canada, where his superb art as a cellist has placed him among the five or six in the world who are known as great artists of the cello.

Penha, with Ralph Linsley at the piano, is presenting a program of very beautiful music. The first group offers works of three Italian masters of the Pre-Bach period.

First comes a Toccata by Frescobaldi, (1583-1644). The work was originally written for organ, and arranged for cello by Cassado. It opens with a few measures of slow introduction, followed by a development in rhapsodic style most happily suited to the cello. The composition is in the key of D major, excellently expressing the brilliant, radiant mood of the piece. The pervading spirit of this opening number is one of virility and accomplishing energy coming to consummation in a satisfying D major tonic note.

Penha's unfailing artistry is shown in his placing Tartini's "Grave" in D minor as the second number on the program, following the permeating brightness of the Frescobaldi. Penha says that to him this "Grave" of Tartini is one of the saddest of pieces, profoundly moving in its unvarying D minor key. The piano plays only one chord to each beat, giving an effect as of a Greek choir rhythmically marking the utterance of the solo. An insistent fatality, a pure simplicity of statement throughout its short life, closes one of the most beautiful bits of writing for the cello.

Tartini (1692-1770), one of the outstanding figures in the history of music, wrote this "Grave" as the slow movement of a concerto originally written for the viola da gamba, the father of the cello. In its early form it had harpsichord accompaniment, of course. Later it was orchestrated for string quintet with two horns. Penha promises that he may later play it in its original form with the accompaniment of the Monterey Peninsula Orchestra.

Last in the first group of this program of music for the cello on February 25 is a sonata by Sammartini (1700-1775), one of 2800 compositions by the great Italian who has been called the "father of Haydn's style."

This sonata was also originally for viola da gamba, and was arranged for cello by Penha's own teacher, Josef Salmon, the famous French Cellist.

The work is in three short movements in the key of G major, bubbling with joyfulness and good spirits. The slow movement is particularly melodious, the last movement, marked Vivace, brilliant and overflowing with gladness.

The Peninsula has waited a long time to hear Michel Penha as a solo artist. This second event of the Carmel Music Society Series promises to be one of the outstanding recitals in its five-year history.

Realty Partnership Makes Active New Concern

Daisy Bostick, one of the best known realty brokers in Carmel, has recently formed a partnership with Kenneth Wood, for a number of years prominently active in the real estate business here. The new firm is Bostick and Wood, and its office is at the corner of Ocean avenue and Dolores street.

In this same office, several years ago, when Daisy Bostick was renting department manager of another concern, Kenneth Wood was the office manager. The new combination brings together again two of the most active and reliable realtors on the peninsula.

Mrs. Bostick, "Ask Daisy Bostick", is a pioneer of Carmel, with a fine knowledge of property values, and a long experience in the handling of rentals. Wood will act as agent for several insurance companies, with facilities for every kind of coverage. The two should make a successful brokerage concern.

Gloria Stuart To Lead March at Movie Ball

Gloria Stuart, Carmel girl who made good in Hollywood and has been starred in a number of important moving pictures, will lead the grand march at a Movie ball to be given at Salinas tomorrow night.

Gloria and a number of other film celebrities are coming to Salinas to take part in the affair which will be given in the new armory auditorium under the auspices of the moving picture operators' association. Otto Habekoss of Monterey is in charge of the affair.

Police Warn Against Accepting Car Rides

Women residents, youngsters and others were being warned this week by Chief of Police August Englund against the danger of accepting automobile rides from total strangers.

Chief Englund pointed out to the recent attack on Mrs. Marion Collier as an example of what may result from automobile rides with strangers. Contrary to stories that came out of Monterey, Mrs. Collier was not "picked" up in Carmel nor was she beaten here. She was walking on the Carmel Hill near the toll gate when she encountered the two men who brutally beat her.

Elizabeth McClung White, is back at her desk after having been ill for a number of weeks.

Valuable Lincoln Document In Possession of Local Resident

A three-page legal document with which Lincoln was first connected in Abraham Lincoln's own writing when he was a promising lawyer in Illinois is in the possession of W. W. Wheeler, Pebble Beach resident, it was disclosed today on the eve of the Great Emancipator's birthday.

The document which was written in connection with a suit instituted by Lincoln on behalf of a client is valued at many thousands of dollars and is kept in the safe-deposit vault in the Carmel bank.

It came down to Wheeler from his father, Judge Samuel P. Wheeler, who many years later became a member of the original law firm connected in his early days of legal practice.

This document, together with many other valuable relics belonging to Lincoln came into the possession of Judge Wheeler who left them to his son. Some of the most valuable documents were stolen from the younger Wheeler's office in New York 15 years ago and have never been recovered.

The legal document still in Wheeler's possession was apparently a copy of a suit filed in the circuit court of the United States in the southern district of Illinois. It was dated at Springfield in January 1858. Lincoln as attorney for the Bank of Commerce seeks payment of $7000 from The Emporium Real Estate and Manufacturing company on a promissory note alleged due.

Kay Johnson to Appear in New S. F. Performance

Kay Johnson, well known in Carmel as a fine actress, will star in "When Ladies Meet," a new production which opens this coming Monday at the Geary Theatre in San Francisco.

Miss Johnson will portray the role of a novelist in the production and Catherine Doucet has been brought from the east to play the leading comedienne. "When Ladies Meet" is now a current Broadway hit, and according to critics who have acclaimed it, the play is highly amusing and in spots racy and frank.

Edgar MacGreagor who directed "The Cat and the Fiddle" and several other successful San Francisco productions is in charge of "When Ladies Meet." Rachel Crothers, who has had over thirty plays produced on Broadway wrote "When Ladies Meet."

Vogue Says

One of the stupidest things in the world is to like things just because they are cheap. It is almost as stupid as to like things just because they are dear. Cheap buying is not economic buying . . . Two semi-pleasing purchases are never equal to one really satisfactory one. The woman of good fashion-taste knows this—for what is smartness but common sense with snap in it? And, as soon as she balances her budget, she is going to exercise the best choice that it permits her . . . Quality of mind will always demand quality of matter.

WE RESERVE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES

Newberry's Authentic Autobiography

My resignation from the advertising end of the Pacific Cereal Association, a position which I had now held for more than two years, was accepted in principle, but with reservations. Manager Grosjean insisted that I should have an anchor out to windward in my new venture, and made me auditor of the mush factory. He explained,

"You can come up here four or five times a year, audit our books, give the new advertising manager a once-over and advise on his plans, and earn an honest dollar or two to help along. Suit yourself as to when you come and how long you stay. And we'll keep your name on the salary list."

It was a generous offer and a friendly one, even if it implied a doubt of my ability to earn a living at the writing game. Later on, when Grosjean really needed my help to save himself from an unfortunate investment, I was able to repay his kindness in part by getting him out of the mess. Up to the time of his death, a few years ago, I was an employee of his, carried on the books, and whenever I needed to earn extra money could go to San Francisco and become an expert accountant for a time.

But when Bertha and I packed our household goods and left the city for Carmel we had no apprehensions of disaster. The pulp magazines were treating me nicely, and I had a novelette in one and a short story in another for the May issue in the month we moved. The world was my oyster and I had a typewriter to open it with. We would make a camp under the pine tree on our lot, and live al fresco until the house was built. The work of construction would be done by my own hands, assisted in the heavier tasks by Handy, a Chinese loaned me by Devendorf.

We arrived at Monterey by the noon train, and got ourselves and luggage aboard Sam Power's horse-drawn stage for conveyance over the hill. Besides ourselves, there were two men and a woman passenger for Carmel. The jog trot at which gait we began the journey soon degenerated into a walk as the grade stiffened, and about two-thirds the way to the summit, Powers brought the team to a halt, and invited all male passengers to get down and walk. He explained,

"These hosses can pull me, these two ladies, the luggage, and Mrs. Williams' eight pound roast of beef to the top of the hill, and that's all. The rest of us has to walk, and no money refunded. Gid-dap!"

Ankle-deep in dust we men made the last steep ascent on our own power, and at that had to wait the stage which was stopping every few hundred yards to breathe the horses. But on the down-hill side of the summit, all of us again in our places, the horses at a trot, Sam Powers began pointing out interesting things with his whip.

"See that bear over yonder?" he said, to get a gasp of astonishment from Bertha, on the seat beside him. "That bunch of pines, I mean. Looks just exactly like a big grizzly bear, r'aring to claw someone. See it?"

My eye following his whipstock, caught an irregular shape of foliage on the sky-line that might be mistaken by a strongly imaginative eye as a r'aring bear. Sam pointed to another with, "And that clump is an eagle ready to fly. And over yonder—"

"I see! It's a frog leaping over a lilypad!" Bertha cried.

"We'll, p'rhaps," Sam drawled. "To me it looked more like a camel kneeling. But mebbe you're right. Gid-dap!"

We rounded the last few curves into Ocean avenue and drew up before Leidig's grocery at San Carlos street with a flourish. Here the two men got out and went inside. "Drummers, both of 'em," Sam explained, "Business is sure picking up in Carmel. Ain't ever seen that happen before—two grocery salesmen in one day."

"Let us off at Pine Inn," I ordered. "This journey has given me an appetite."

As we came up to the hotel, a "Yoo-hee!" from behind turned our eyes to where George Sterling was hastening to catch us, waving a mandatory hand. He shouted, "Don't get out! You're coming to my place," and when he came alongside and grasped our hands, "Dinner's waiting at the house, Bertha. And you're to stay with us until your place is ready. Turn around, Sam, and take us to the Eighty Acres."

"Ought to be a law against people changing their minds," Sam grumbled. "Gid-dap!"

Sterling had been living part of his time in Carmel for several years, and much of the poetry which went into the two books of verse published at that time, "The Testimony of the Suns and Other Poems" and "A Wine of Wizardry and Other Poems," had been written in Carmel. He was regarded as one of the poetic geniuses of America, and Ambrose Bierce and Edwin Markham divided honors as his discoverer. With his wife, Carrie, he lived in a rambling frame house that overlooked a ravine in the midst of a pine woods, the only house in that neighborhood.

There was a group of other dinner guests gathered in the big living room, and mint juleps were being absorbed avidly, the unimportant part of the concoction coming from a stream in the ravine, where a big bed of mint grew lushly. We were introduced to Sinclair Lewis, called "Red" for hirsute reasons; Upton Sinclair, whose "The Jungle" I had read; and to Mary Austin, although we had met her before in the old Coppa days. One had to be introduced to Mary Austin frequently. Harry Lafler had come in from his place down the coast, and welcomed us with the glad news that a load of shakes, frowed by his own hand, was upon our lot ready for house building.

I was anxious to get away to the lot and begin fixing up our camp there, for I had no intention of accepting George's kind invitation to remain with them, but there came no reasonable opportunity to break from the party. After a pic-nicky dinner, served all over the place, inside and out, we found ourselves headed towards a meeting of the Forest Theater society, elsewhere in the forest over narrow trails. To our insistence that we were not members of the organization, and really didn't know what it was all about, the others answered that everybody living in Carmel belonged, and we'd soon learn about it. Finally we came out of the woods, crossed a road, and found ourselves before a house upon whose porch and steps in chairs, stools and upon cushions, sprawled a dozen or more men, women, girls and boys. A young man with an earnest face was talking, and we found places without impeding his flow of words.

"That's Herbert Heron," George whispered to me. "The Forest Theater is his idea—"

"His and mine," Mary Austin said, sotto voce, from my other side. "I thought of it first." Then I listened to Heron.

"The idea is to give local playwrights an opportunity to see their offerings produced in a fitting manner," he said, "amid beautiful surroundings, with fine casts of local actors—"

"Where are they?" asked somebody. "Actors or playwrights?"

"Right here among you, actors and playwrights. We will develop them, and help them to success. The first thing is to raise money enough to build a stage, seats for the auditorium, dressingrooms and the essentials of a theater. The question before this meeting is how to raise that money."

"That's always the question," remarked somebody.

"We have here," Heron went on, scorning the interruption, "some of the brightest business minds of Carmel. About us, sitting here and there, I see Joseph W. Hand, Fred Leidig, Thomas Reardon, and others who have brains that team with financial ideas, men whose great success in life has been due to their ability to raise money. Let us hear from Mr. Hand."

"Joe! Joe!" cried the audience, as a tall, slender man came to his feet, smiling and bowed cheerfully. He said,

"I have given but little study bills—" as yet to the problem before us, but I have no doubt it can be solved. At first flush, the idea presents itself of assessing every member of the organization—"

"No—no—no!" from the members of the organization.

"First flush seems to be a bob-tailed one," Joe Hand continued. "An assessment is never popular. Perhaps I had better call upon Mr. Reardon for financial advice."

"Haven't an idea," growled Thomas Reardon, from his seat on the steps.

"Or on Mr. Fred Leidig," Hand said.

"We'll—" Leidig bobbed up earnestly— "I'd say make the Development Company pay the

"Hurrah! Hooray! Tiger!" from the meeting.

"You've said something!" from Sterling. Heron hammered for order on the porch rail. When enthusiasm over Leidig's suggestion had sobered sufficiently, Heron moved that a committee be appointed to wait upon Mr. Devendorf and notify him that the meeting had decided that his company should pay for building the theater. I was voting loudly for that when Bertha tapped my shoulder, and whispered in my ear,

"Slip away quietly, and we'll get down on our lot. I don't want to sleep in George Sterling's chicken-coop! I just won't!"

IS THAT SO?

By Winsor Josselyn

Post Office salesmanship could be boosted, according to a gentleman who had leased the front half of the post office table as a downtown resting place.

"Stamps, for instance," said he pounding the table. "Instead of letting a customer leave with six cents' worth, the boy in the wickets should say, 'Lady, help the Government and take a lot. Take a dollar's worth. Those you don't use—you can tear up!'"

Don Staniford, our reliable source of material day or night, has followed our footsteps and turned musical critic. Yesterday he gave an impassioned critique, before enraptured listeners, of a recent recital which, he insisted, had a star number entitled: "Butterflies Jumping Over Bullfrogs."

Mr. Galt Bell, director of drama, has busted the auto body paint trust. Next time you see his sleek Ford gentleman's drive-about, notice its smooth, shining paint job. But don't rub it with an inquisitive finger. You may be on one of the grease paint sections, shade No. 13—Olive. For Galt was menaced by a barbed wire fence during the Great Flood of recent history and when he got his pride and joy into the garage he found the paint looking like the finish on a barroom piano.

No time to lay the car up for new coachwork. Out with the makeup box and presto! a few touches of Stein's Ground, a swipe of Surface Powder and once more a band-box gentleman's drive-about.

Don't point accusing fingers at us in the library as we pore over nit-wit magazines. We are only practicing—getting in shape for an afternoon with the Big Four. Yes, sir, you've got to brace yourself for the classics . . . they're that dull.

Thank God for telephones. When callers phone, you can be in or you can be out—or just putting on your hat.

And now there's one more angle of this calling business. We'll suppose that the people who have rung up are good joes and you want 'em, but they've chosen to arrive smack-dab in the middle of a radio hour that you just won't miss.

Why doesn't some radio concern advertise Radio Etiquette, and what social crimes to avoid regarding it? We mean just like the medical outfits that holler about having unsuspected physical handicaps that rob you of life's most dangerous moments. Let them say:

"You may not even dream it! But the reason you haven't been asked back to the C. Mortimer Henderson hacienda is that you came bounding in right in the midst of Mr. Henderson's favorite radio program—Dr. Trephine's Message To Men. Always be sure to find out your host's program preference, or else accept the consequences of social oblivion!"

We're going to take up tennis—or maybe badminton. Not so much for the game as for the swank sitting around afterward. People we know well (and know well we could beat at any five other selected games) loll in thick-eyed ease after tennis, or badminton, all polo-coated and muffled in turkish towels and damp of hair and look so doggone hoity-toity that we're needled with envy.

So we guess it's tennis—or maybe even badminton.

Delos Curtis is the man to thank for the sunshine. Day after day he has gone through his mystic mummerly out in front of his store—the secret Sun Chant of the Carmel Indians—and at last the sun is out again. When you see him sitting out there, yachting cap over an eye, just remember that there's Carmel's sun bringer.

If, by chance, he's sitting in front of neighbor Carl Rohr's, his perfectly logical explanation will be that he doesn't want to wear out his own store-front while working for the whole community.

Another item pertaining to radio is here released by the Pine Cone Science Service, always lending a helping hand.

"With only one radio set in the home nowadays, and with all the relatives who have come to live with you, it is impossible to set the loudness of a station to the approval of all. Here is the solution: our patent Ear Muffs. They are adjustable to any head. Each muff carries a movable diaphragm. The radio set is turned on full blast and each member of the household opens or closes the listening diaphragms according to whether he wants loud or soft music.

"It is suggested, however, that windows and neighbors be tested before this plan is put into practice.

The "Giving The Body A Rest Society" is gaining noted converts in Carmel. Many of our leading citizens have joined it, either in one or more Degrees of Restfulness, and the membership is expected to hold up well—until the next run of big holidays.

In Ewig's grocery window there was a display of dog food. It looked like squashed corks wrapped in a cloth checker board. Sitting aloofly in front of the window was a snooty, portly fox terrier.

"What," we asked, "is this—a living example?"

"Correct," admitted Mr. Ewig. "Not only is that a living example, but that is Duke, by name. Duke has been pensioned by the dog food company. He discovered what to do with the biscuits that he had left over from lunch. We found him one day carefully smoothing the checkered sack and using the biscuits as checker men, and sales jumped three times when a picture of him was sent to the kennels throughout the nation."

Here's one to tell around the next bottle of beer.

Some gents loaded a high-sided truck with heavy firewood. They took it to the customer's house and were told to unload it in the garage. The entrance was steep and the garage low. The sides of the truck barely scraped in under the garage entrance.

The truck was unloaded. Its springs, relieved of weight, rose several inches. The truck began backing cut and—whango! it hit the top of the entrance. Like the aeroplane that was built in a basement and couldn't be got out, here was a problem.

American ingenuity to the fore. A whole neighborhood of small children had appeared from nowhere and they were offered a ride. Gleefully they got aboard and were directed to jump up and down all together. After three good jumps in unison the springs swung low enough so that on the fourth down movement the truck was able to shoot out and up the driveway.

Carmel garage architects please take both pause and measurement.

phone books were being distributed to residents. The books contain revised numbers and addresses from August 1931 until the present.

The distribution of the books is a strange sight for Carmel. Fifteen years ago, there were three telephones in the village—so there!

No Babies Will Be Born in 1933!

It's the depression
There won't be any babies,
and so of course there won't be any baby carriages sold. No kids will go to school, so there won't be any school clothes sold, nor books, nor pencils. ● Leaky roofs will be allowed to leak; there'll be no roof patching done. Same way with shoe soles and inner tubes. In fact, things in general will just discontinue for a while, indefinitely . . . unless someone is crazy enough to keep on telling what they have to sell. ● Well, we for one outfit are just that crazy; and if you feel silly, too, we'll gladly help you to "keep on telling" in a way that will create new business.

Supervisors Act To Guard Beauty Of Coast Highway

Protection of the Carmel-San Simeon highway against the establishment of commercialized enterprises like hot dog stands and unsightly service stations and billboards appeared certain this week following action taken by the supervisors.

recommendation made by the planning commission, adopted an "interim ordinance" which zones land for 500 feet on either side of the highway for agricultural purposes. The ordinance will be effective for eight months.

No restriction is placed on the use of the land for agricultural purposes. Construction of service stations and similar commercialized projects must have the approval of the supervisors before they are permitted.

The ordinance now in effect

The supervisors, acting on a will act to prevent despoliation

of the scenic road, pending formal zoning of the land.

During the same session of the supervisors, a letter asking to preserve the beauty of Monterey county highways was read from Mrs. Vera Peck Millis of Carmel, secretary of the Monterey History and Art association.

A petition bearing one thousand names and circulated by the Carmel Woman's club against billboards on county highways was also read.

Addison Mizner Succumbs Following Long Illness

Funeral services were held in Florida this week for Addison Mizner, well known Carmelite and an internationally famous architect who died Monday after an illness of several months, according to word received here by his friends.

Mizner had made his home in Carmel valley for many years and was prominent among the local literary and social circle. Mizner was a protege of the famous Stanford White and did most of his outstanding work in Florida.

Several homes in Pebble Beach, including his own in Carmel valley were designed by him. One of them is now occupied by his niece, Mrs. McKim Hollins.

Mizner broke into the newspapers all over the country last year with the publication of an autobiography, "The Many Mizners," which attracted wide attention. His brother, Wilson Mizner, playwright and humorist lives in Hollywood.

New Monterey Group Keep On Working

Among other battles being fought by the merchants association of New Monterey toward betterment of their city as a whole, comes a new which involves a checkup on the Monterey to search for loopholes which would permit further reduction of city expense.

Bill Sorensen, the spark in the sparkplug of the group is to circulate a petition asking that a two week extension of the fishing period be granted. That New Monterey will do all in its power to further scrip circulation as well as other unemployment relief programs, was a resolution. Several other matters were discussed briefly.

Pistol Club Planning Another "Goat Shoot"

On the heel of a successful "goat shoot" which lasted for two months and was won by George Wood Jr., a similar event starts this Sunday under the auspices of the Carmel pistol club.

Members of the club shoot at small goat heads the size of a dollar. The member who gets the highest score comes out the winner. The first and third Sunday in each month will be devoted to rapid fire practice.

Carmel Saddened By Death of Wm. T. Beatty

News of the tragic death of William T. Beatty, which occurred in San Francisco Monday, came as a shock to his many friends and acquaintances in Carmel, where he was known and loved. A man of large affairs, head of the Osborne Manufacturing Company at Chicago, Beatty spent a part of his time on the Monterey making his home at Pebble Beach, and had a lively interest in Carmel's community matters, particularly the drama and music.

Mr. Beatty, whose home, The Oaks at Pebble Beach, is one of the beautiful places of that district, also bought and built several houses in and around Carmel, places for his own and his family's rest and convenience. Until his last illness, he was a great walker, and liked to stop in his pedestrian tours to rest and read in his own place, his favorite books around him. His tower-like, brown rock retreat in Hatton Fields, overlooking the sea and mountains, is of much interest.

Mr. Beatty is survived by a widow and a niece, residing at Pebble Beach, and by a daughter in the East.

Naval Officer's Home On Point Burglarized

County authorities and police were today searching for a daring burglar who early this week broke into the home of Capt. Henry Odell on the Point and escaped with loot valued at several hundred dollars.

Captain Odell who is stationed at Mare Island, but comes here every week end, was away from here when the burglary occurred.
Entrance into the house was gained by removing the entire frame of a front window.

The Devil Walks

By Herbert Cerwin

Carmel received its first whiff of spring this week, and out came white flannels and beach pajamas . . . but we must tread lightly on the subject, for by the time we're on the press, we might again be shivering under our winter coats. That's Carmel.

Somehow we survive through weeks of fogs and rain and the moment we are ready to depart for warmer climes, out comes the sunshine. And then we just can't leave Carmel.

Yet fog and rain and the roaring of the surf, we are told, goes hand in hand with artistic inspiration.

Jeffers tells us poetry never flows so easily from his pen as on a stormy night. And for William Silva, foggy weather is ideal for painting.

Yet we know one Carmel writer that didn't pen a line during the rain of the past few weeks. All his efforts went in digging ditches to keep his house from floating away.

For weeks now, Col. Claire Foster has been returning from the postoffice, his arms loaded with mail from all over the country. And all because his name slipped into the front pages of newspapers when he divulged how through a short wave sender, another radio operator thousands of miles away in frozen Alaska, was rescued from asphyxiation.

In his mail were letters from a woman who wanted to marry but didn't have the money for a wedding dress . . . a man who had a scheme in which a million could be made over night . . . a stenographer who had a play that should be on Broadway . . . a college youth who knew he could become a fine radio operator, if Mr. Foster would only buy him a set.

Why all the letters? The newspapers said Col. Foster was a retired millionaire.

Ella Winter, Lincoln Steffens' wife has a book on Russia coming out next month. The title as announced by the publishers is "Red Virtue."

A. A. Proctor, editor of Adventure paying the highest of any of the pulps—up to 12 cents a word—had occasion to remonstrate with Stephen A. Reynolds about the "brutality" of one of his whaling stories.

Reynolds had the captain-villain transfixed by the pointed two and a half pound bomb from a brass whale-gun, and blown to atoms when the bomb's second time fuse burned through to the giant powder. He toned down the story and the check came through.

Later, however, Reynolds wrote Editor Proctor, protesting that life in the fore-castle of a whaler was a rough spot, and submitting at the same time a yarn entitled "Yo-ho-ho and the Barrel of Rum." It was so absolutely brutal that it sold for that reason alone.

The story appears in a forthcoming issue of Adventure.

True Story for the week: The youngsters on San Antonio street who prepared tea for their friends by brewing poison oak leaves.

Carmel Outdoor School Teaches Self-Reliance

Declaring that the psychological approach through play activities yields the greatest returns in educating the young children, Henriette Klein, director of the Carmel Outdoor School, corner of Eighth and Carmelo, emphasizes her contention by presenting her group of preschool children with an environment filled to overflowing with every variety of play material. "Children, like adults," says Mrs. Klein, "learn quickly and easily when they are having fun. The years before formal school training offer the best time for social adjustment, for development of leadership qualities, and for training in manual activities."

Behavior problems, which are largely born of boredom, melt away when children are absorbed in constructive activity.

Youngsters directing a puppet show or making a doll house of orange boxes, as they do in this interesting new Carmel school, are too busy to get into "trouble." The simple grounds and sunny four-room house, furnished with child-size chairs, tables and lockers, offer splendid opportunity for a child to learn independence and self-reliance, but not much chance for "don'ts."

"We are changing our name," says Mrs. Klein, "from Carmel Play School to Carmel Outdoor School, because we found that many people, unaware of the constructive type of play materials presented to the children felt that four- and five-year-olds ought to be learning something, not just playing. Even our clay modelling and painting is done out-of-doors and in sunsuits when possible—so we are truly an outdoor school thanks to Carmel's sunny winters."

Children from two to five are received at the school five mornings a week at a nominal fee. Mrs. Klein, who majored in psychology during her university years, has had postgraduate work in education, and six years of acquaintance with nursery schools, including the well-known "Children's Community" in Berkeley.

Christian Science Churches

"Soul" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, February 12, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon will include the following from the Bible: "And when Jesus departed thence, two blind men followed him, crying, and saying, Thou son of David, have mercy on us. And when he was come into the house, the blind men came to him: and Jesus saith unto them, Believe ye that I am able to do this? They said unto him, Yea, Lord. Then touched he their eyes, saying, According to your faith be it unto you. And their eyes were opened" (Matt. 9:27-30).

The Lesson-Sermon also will include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Neither age nor accident can interfere with the senses of Soul, and there are no other real senses . . . Spirit's senses are without pain, and they are forever at peace. Nothing can hide from them the harmony of all things and the might and permanence of Truth" (p. 214).

Peninsula Organizations Support Highway Zoning

A number of Monterey peninsula and Carmel organizations are joining in support of the local movement to zone the Carmel-San Simeon highway against the establishment of commercial enterprises and bill board signs.

Last week, Milton Latham of Carmel spoke before the Monterey peninsula Exchange club on the importance of zoning the highway. After his talk, the club passed a resolution urging the supervisors to consider the matter. Similar resolutions have been passed by the Pacific Grove Woman's club and the Carmel city council.
